

RUSSIANS ARE AGAIN ON THE OFFENSIVE UPON GALICIA

And Austrians Admit the Loss of Several Positions of Importance to Their Safety.

ASSAULT TO RIGA

Hindenburg Tries Move There to Relieve Pressure in South,
But Runs Are Ready.

London, Jan. 9.—The battle between the Russians and Austro-Germans in Galicia and Bukovina continues. The Austrians have made determined counter-attacks along the Midele Strip, and northeast of the town of Czernowitz. According to the Russian official communication they were beaten back with enormous losses, while the Russians have made distinct gains, occupying several Austrian positions and taking more than 200 prisoners in all.

RUSSIANS RETAKE CZARTORYSK

The Russian official reasserts the claim of the capture of Czartorysk, after admitting a repulse there yesterday. The Austrians again employ the Russians from all of the town except the cemetery, but were unable to hold it. With the arrival of Russian reserves they were themselves "checked."

The Austrians apparently are fighting desperately in this region in the effort to hold their positions as a screen for Kovel and a link between the Austro-German forces in the neighborhood of Pinsk, which is threatened with envelopment as a result of the Russian advance.

Vladivostok today that the Gallician attacks on the Volhynia front and in Bukovina have been resumed. The Austrian positions in some places have been penetrated. The official statement of the Vienna War Office claims they have all been reoccupied.

The Russians also record the recapture of the German offensive in the Miltu road where fresh attacks were repulsed. The German advance employed gas, but evidently without success.

GERMANS REHEW RIGA ATTEMPT

These attacks by von Hindenburg, it is believed here, are meant primarily to divert the Russians from their offensive along the southern front, and the Russians now have ample reserves of men and material, it is not believed they will be turned aside by this maneuver, which they now regard as a mere diversion.

The Russians appear to have anticipated the moment of their offensive from the Czernowitz assault to the attack on the Volhynia front, and the Russian advance in the Bukovina, and, accordingly, because of the gain in Volhynia, the capture of Kovel-Sary railway station, it is vital to a continued offensive in the Bukovina. It is strategically important because it is the first vital station southeast from Kiev-Lviv, the Volhynia line (Dnieper) is the immediate goal of the Russian advance.

The Volhynia drive, carrying Sary, and due north of the Volhynia, further intensifies the threat of tremendous importance to either side. It has changed hands repeatedly during the last few days, and it is here that the violence of the new battle is more intense than ever in the Russian theatre.

By pushing their Czartorysk gain through continued onslaughts, the Russians also continued to send reinforcements to the Volhynia theatre. Thus they are gaining a great advantage in the Russian theatre, and the withdrawal of the Russian forces from the Romanian front.

ANXIETY IN BERLIN.—German press comment on the eastern theatre reveals a note of anxiety with regard to the strength of German troops in the case of new German attacks and the Russian offensive, it is successful in bringing both sides to the Russian offensive, it is successful in bringing both sides to the Russian offensive, it is successful in bringing both sides to the Russian offensive.

RUSSIAN REPORT.—The official statement from general headquarters in Moscow, according to the Russian press, is that the Russian advance in the Miltu road, where fresh attacks were repulsed, the German advance employed gas, but evidently without success.

Wants 50,000 Flock Germans to Lead in Attack On Suez.

Meanwhile Djomal Pasha Refuses to Start for Egypt.

Rome, Jan. 9.—The Turco-German expedition against Egypt is held in abeyance owing to the refusal of Djomal Pasha to attack the Suez Canal without German assistance. The completion of the railroad of Jerusalem is not being pushed forward within 50 miles from the Suez Canal. Its continuation is extremely difficult, hence the construction is delayed.

There is also doubt concerning the loyalty of the Arab irregulars, who have been sent to the Suez Canal. The Turkish authorities are very anxious to see the completion of the railroad of Jerusalem.

GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN FINALLY ABANDONED

Not a Man of the Anglo-French Forces Now
Left on the Peninsula.

Tip Was Cleared Saturday Without Loss—
Everything Useful Taken.

London, Jan. 9.—The campaign at the Dardanelles has been abandoned. The positions at the tip of the Gallipoli Peninsula which were retained when the British troops left Suez Bay and Anzac Cove on December 10 have now been evacuated. Not a British or French soldier now remains on the Peninsula, which was evacuated by the British troops on December 10.

The evacuation of the last Allied position was effected by the official announcement, with the loss of one British soldier, wounded, the French suffering no casualties. This appears to have been an evacuation of the Gallipoli Peninsula, which was evacuated by the British troops on December 10.
